

9TH APRIL 2021

Running the GeoNight together.

Shared explorations in the historical centre of Florence.

In the last year, the measures to contain the pandemic forced us to live almost exclusively into our “private” and domestic space, and to give up all those sharing and socializing activities that characterize students’ life in the city. Being inspired by the growing international debate on the “run as a method”, the students of the Master’s degree in Geography of Florence University propose a non-competitive run through the streets of the historic center, with the aim to highlight the importance of the student population in city life and to explore new ways of living and sharing urban public spaces.

The methods of participation will comply with the covid-related regulations and will be communicated after the registration.
